

Anatomy of the Soul

Man is a single entity

‘Un solo supuesto’ 2N1, 1

The Spiritual or Intellectual Faculties

Will (desire), power to form and deform our surroundings. Its affects are purified by LOVE by emptying appetite of all that is not GOD. Appetitive. The faculty of ‘choice.’

Intellect (understanding), capacity to focus on object/idea. Purified by FAITH by emptying it of its intelligence. Cognitive.

contemplation

Memory (remembering), capacity to retrieve, anticipate, posses. Moved by will, devil, God, or unconscious. Purified by HOPE by emptying memory of creature possession. DESIRE

The Higher Part of the Soul or the Spirit

Sensory Part of the Soul

interior sense faculties present the objects perceived through the senses, objects that stir the sensory appetites

meditation

Interior Corporal Senses: Imagination and Phantasy. Discursive powers.

Sensitive powers or the external corporal senses: Sight, smell, taste, touch, and hearing.

Vocal prayer

Body

Contact with world through the senses

Natural Appetites (food, drink, comfort) are either ordered or disordered.

Natural Passions (joy, hope, fear, grief) are either ordered or disordered. Origin of impulses to act toward an object.

The Will has the task of controlling the passions and desires; however, the afflictions of the Will depend on Memory

Will moves towards objects with the passions. The passions, appetites, and affections can carry-off the Will with them.

Phantasy and Memory present image to Intellect which then makes a judgment.

Disturbances never arise in the soul, except through apprehensions of the memory. 3S5,1

The phantasy and the memory serve as a reservoir for all images received and as archives for the intellect.

Imagination and phantasy: "They are of service to each other in due order because one of them is discursive with the images and the other forms them.

2S12, 3

Things of the world cannot harm the soul because they do not enter it, but the will and the desire for them, which dwell in the soul, are the cause of the damage, and the reason for detachment. 1S3,4
